

Community Meeting: Perceptions & experiences of fracking in Woodsetts

The ASSIST project was designed to study public perceptions & concerns about shale gas, including in communities where exploration was proposed. Ongoing since 2019, this project included Woodsetts as one of the communities of focus. At this meeting, Patrick Devine-Wright & Stacia Ryder will present a report of their findings about the experiences of Woodsetts residents with shale gas. Attending community members will receive a copy of the report, and are invited to provide feedback on the findings and ask questions about the project. For any questions, please contact s.s.ryder@exeter.ac.uk.
